

A photograph of a street at night, likely in a European city, with buildings and strings of warm white Christmas lights. The lights are strung across the street and around the buildings, creating a festive atmosphere. The buildings have multiple windows, some of which are lit from within. The overall scene is dark, with the lights providing the primary illumination.

Erst wenn Weihnachten
im Herzen ist,
liegt Weihnachten
auch in der Luft.

William Turner Ellis